REFRACTIVE MUSIC KIDS

Songs for children and families with a modern sound that are fun and catchy.

Refractive Music Kids is the children's music project of New Zealand singer-songwriter Andrew Morriss, creating fun, imaginative songs that kids love and parents don't mind having on repeat.

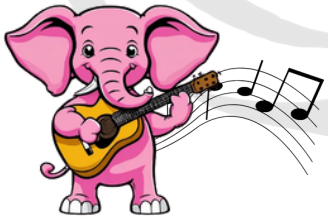

Blending catchy melodies with a modern guitar-driven sound, the songs are built around playful stories, quirky characters, and plenty of humour—designed to spark creativity and get kids moving, singing, and laughing.

The project grew out of Andrew's work as a guitar teacher, where he saw a need for music that was both engaging and easy for young learners to play. What started as songs for his students quickly became something bigger—music that works just as well at home, in the car, or in the classroom.

Refractive Music Kids releases a steady stream of original singles, each paired with fun, creative videos on YouTube. Alongside the music, Andrew has also developed a Kids Guitar Starter Kit, helping young beginners learn to play using the same songs—making music feel accessible, achievable, and fun from the very start.

Recorded from a home studio in rural Canterbury, New Zealand, the songs carry a warm DIY spirit with a polished, modern feel—bridging the gap between kids' music and everyday listening.
At its heart, Refractive Music Kids is all about making music something kids can jump into—whether they're listening, singing along, or picking up a guitar for the first time.

For more information, discography and of course music check out www.refractivemusic.com